

Connie Burket

Connie Burket is an arts educator, motivated by a strong belief that every child should have access to the creative, cultural, cognitive, and community-building benefits of art, music, dance, and drama.

Connie likes to experiment with a wide range of techniques and processes. Her work includes drawing and painting in a variety of media, collage, handmade books, textiles, and three-dimensional construction. She enjoys and appreciates the problem-solving aspects of making both design-based and concept-based art.

Fascinated by the ways that principles of design – such as pattern, contrast, balance, repetition, and movement – translate to human and social systems, Connie hopes to eventually meet the challenge of effectively expressing those interconnections in her work.
